2006 Falls of the Ohio Summer Day Camps

The 2006 Falls of the Ohio Summer Day Camps are filled with exciting hands-on education activities for students who will be in grades 1-6 during the 2006-07 school year. Students learn about the rich natural and cultural history found at the Falls of the Ohio as they explore the Interpretive Center's exhibits, films, aquariums and the natural environment of the Falls area.

The Young Paleontologist Summer Day Camp for ages 9-14 focuses on the study and collection of fossils and a career in paleontology. Participants in the Young Paleontologist Camp take fossil collecting field trips to a local quarry, and an adult must participate with the child during the fossil collecting days.

The 2006 camps are sponsored by the Clarksville Riverfront Foundation and Falls of the Ohio State Park Interpretive Center with support from The Cralle Foundation. To register for one of the following camps, contact Dani Cummins at (812) 283-4999 or dani@falls-of-the-ohio.org
